

UOIT Faculty Association

Working together  Learning together

Bargaining Update: February 12, 2014

We had a full day of Collective Bargaining today and at 10:15 signed a Memorandum of Settlement with the University, in other words, we have the first Collective Agreement for the Teaching Faculty.

We have tentatively scheduled an information session for Wednesday February 26, that is, after Reading Week, to present the Collective Agreement to you and then will hold a vote concerning acceptance of it. Times and locations will follow at a later date.

My sincere thanks go to Ruth Simpson, Richard Bartholomew and Maurice DiGiuseppe who constituted the bargaining team, supported by Julie Zatzman who took notes for the last several sessions. Marnie Ham, Amanda Warr, and Ann LeSage were also involved earlier on in the bargaining process and all those named contributed greatly to the development of the CA.

As Teaching Faculty members, you too, contributed to its completion with your advice and suggestions and telling us what were the essential elements that you believed needed to be included.

Thank you to all!

Shirley Van Nuland, Chief Negotiator

Bargaining Team:
Richard Bartholomew
Maurice DiGiuseppe
Ruth Simpson